Gentlemen:

I am appalled that the new broadcast service known as Low Power FM (LPFM) could possibly take priority over the current FM translator service I listen to.

I currently listen to K-LOVE and do not want this option taken away from me. The government seems to constantly think they know what is right for the citizens. However, I still consider America a place where we can freely choose what we want to watch or listen to. And that includes my freedom of listening to K-LOVE.

There are many hurting people out there. Many have no hope or faith. It is imperative for these people to hear things that will give them that hope and faith. I truly believe that K-LOVE is a radio station that can provide that to the public. There are also people out there, like me, who do have hope and faith but also need that daily encouragement which K-LOVE provides.

I frequently travel and am distraught when I cannot find K-LOVE in a specific area. Therefore, PLEASE understand what a worthwhile organization this and do NOT let it go by the wayside for the LPFM stations.

Thank you!

Connie D. Jones
